Democratic platform for 1880: "Anything for votes."

Why don't the Democrats show their financial record, just for a change?

It is said that Mr. Spurgeon's fifteen hundredth sermon has been translated in Japanese.

The Greenbackers and Democrats are still disputing over the Maine election, and they can't agree as to which of the two got whipped.

While the Republicans are fighting for a perfect individual freedom, the Democrats are shouting for the principles of Lee and Jackson.

The first Japanese female child born in the United States was born in New York on Thursday. It is the daughter of Mahoto Taku, a silk merchant of that city.

The Democrats do not find it very "glorious" work in meeting public opinion on the "glorious" dispatch of Hancock's. It is as bad as Hampton's Stamford speech.

Governor Smith is taking a lively hand in the campaign. His speeches are short—all the better for that—and large numbers gather to hear him. He speaks to a purpose, and never fails to preach sound Republican doctrine, and always pleases his hearers.

Business men should ask themselves this question in this campaign: "What would have been the effect upon the people and the country if the Democratic party had been successful in its efforts during the past twenty years?" That is a question that staggers the Democracy.

The Republicans of Madison had a rousing meeting in the Assembly Chamber on Tuesday night. It was the largest mass meeting held there since the Farnell reception. Hon. L. C. Sloan and Judge P. A. Orton, both of whom recently abandoned the Democratic party, made very enthusiastic speeches. The Republicans of Madison are doing some noble work for the party.

If our Democratic friends want a change, why don't they begin at once to shout over the history of their party for the past twenty years? Let them give a brief history of their record in Congress during the war, their position on strengthening the public credit, what they did about reconstruction; and what position they took regarding the currency and especially resumption; and while they are doing this they might as well give the history of the party on the homestead questions, and on the pension bills. All these questions are of importance, and the Democrats should be able to handle their own record, and not leave that wholly to the Republicans.

SENATOR CAMERON.

A few days ago the Gazette made mention of the fact that Senator Angus Cameron had written a letter in which he declared being a candidate for United States Senator. The letter was written to ex-Congressman Rusk, and is as follows:

LA CROSSE, Wis., September 14, 1880.
MY DEAR SIR—I have received your letter of yesterday. I ask whether or not I am a candidate for reelection to the senate. You doubtless remember that I often stated to you while we were serving together in the Forty-fourth Congress that I did not intend to be a candidate for reelection.

Last fall and winter I was solicited by many Republicans residing in various parts of the State to permit my name to be used as a candidate for senator. After considerable hesitation I consented that it might be used. It was thereupon announced that I would be a candidate for reelection.

I have since reconsidered the matter, and in answer to your question I now say I am not a candidate for senator. I am not even a "dark horse." I am absolutely and entirely out of the senatorial race. Very truly, your friend,
ANGUS CAMERON.

This settles the matter so far as Mr. Cameron is concerned, and will be the means of bringing out other candidates for Senatorial honors. There are some who will be pleased with his declaration, while very many of his political friends will regret that he has voluntarily taken himself out of the Senatorial race. Mr. Cameron has made an excellent Senator. He has provoked the displeasure of the Democrats, and has agreeably disappointed his Republican friends. It will be remembered that he was elected in 1875 by the votes of the Democrats in the Legislature, and a dozen Republicans who could not endorse Mr. Carpenter. Receiving the united support of the Democrats, it was supposed by not a few that he would either keep company with the Democrats in the Senate, or climb the fence after the fashion of Judge Davis, of Illinois. But Mr. Cameron was not willing to barter his political principles for a seat in the Senate. He did not seek the nomination in 1875, and thought so little about it that he could not even hope of becoming a dark horse. But when asked by telegraph if he would accept an election to the United States Senate, Mr. Losey, his partner, (Mr. Cameron being absent) answered that he would, and immediately he was nominated. He felt that the Democrats had no claims upon him, and that he was under no obligations to them, and therefore the moment he entered the Senate he placed himself on the side of the Republicans, and throughout his term remained a true Republican, and was fearless and unflinching in advocacy and defending the principles of his party. He will leave the Senate of the United States bearing with him the sincere thanks and the kindest regards of the Republicans of Wisconsin.

A WORD ABOUT SECTIONALISM.

Every Democratic paper and every Democratic speaker both North and South, charges the Republicans with stirring up sectional strife, and running the campaign on a sectional issue. Colonel Vilas told the Democrats of Chicago last week that the Republicans did not want peace with the South, and that they were opposed to reconciliation and fraternal friendship. The New York Herald says Senator Conkling's masterly speech sounds the keynote of the Republican campaign and cuts off and things away any possible help from the South. The issue today is between the North and the South, and the facts like daggers that Mr. Conkling hurled at the very vitals of the Democratic party, are facts which the Democratic party and the South have created by their own acts. The sectional issue has been brought into existence by the effort and persistence of the Democratic party. When the Republican party through its leaders in Congress and on the stump and through its press, pleaded for equal men, equal rights, and identical interests, the Democrats in the North backed by the Democrats in the South, denounced the doctrine, and have used all the power in their party to keep divided the interests of the North and South. For facts let us go to records, and let us see who is fanning the flames of "sectionalism," the Republicans or the Democrats.

For the Republicans, Abraham Lincoln said, "That this Nation under God shall have a new birth of freedom, and that the government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

For the Democrats, James G. Field, Attorney General of Virginia, said September 15, 1880, "We killed many Yankees during the war, and I wish we had killed twice as many more, enough to have given us the victory and our cause success."

For the Republicans, General Garfield said in Congress in 1870, "The war for the Union was right—overlasting right; the war against the Union was wrong—forever wrong."

For the Democrats, General Fitzhugh Lee said September 2, 1880, "If you desire that those heroes buried yonder (pointing to the Confederate monument) shall not have died in vain, vote the Democratic ticket and vindicate the principles for which they sacrificed their lives."

For the Republicans, General Grant said, August 12, 1880, "I agree with you that it will not do to be beaten now. We should never be beaten till every man who counts, or represents those who count, can cast his vote just as he pleases, and can have it counted just as he casts it."

For the Democrats, Wade Hampton said July 24, 1880, "I yield, fellow citizens, as you know, to none in devotion to our lost cause. I should never declare the men who fought for it traitor or rebel."

For the Republicans, General Garfield said, August 6, 1881, "So long as we live we will stand by these black allies. We will stand by them until the sun of liberty, fixed in the firmament of our Constitution, shall shine with equal ray upon every man, black or white, throughout the Union. In this there is all the beneficence of eternal justice, and by this we will stand forever."

For the Democrats Congressman Blackburn said in the House, April 5, 1879, "We do not intend to stop until we have stricken the last vestige of your war legislation from the statute book."

For the Republicans Mr. Conkling said, September 17, 1880, "The Republican party proposes to administer the Government honestly, to preserve amity with all the world, observing our own obligations with others and seeing that others observe theirs with us, to protect every citizen of whatever birth or color in his rights and equality before the law, including his right to vote and to be counted, to uphold the public credit and the sanctity of engagements; and by doing these things, the Republican party proposes to assure to industry, humanity, and civilization in America the amplest welcome and the safest home."

For the Democrats, Mr. Landers, Democratic candidate for Governor of Indiana, says, "When General Hancock is elected he will carry the Government back where it was when the Republicans got it."

Here will be found the difference between the two parties. The Republicans ask for equal rights and peace; the Democrats demand power and the placing of the government in the hands of the South.

Patriarchal Apple Trees.

From the Boston Transcript.
In Skowhegan, Me., are two risset apple trees. The oldest was planted in 1702. The trees are seven feet from the ground to the branches, five in number, all of which are very large and average 35 feet in length, covering a space of ground 63 feet in diameter. In these branches is a playhouse for children as been built for half a century or more. Anywhere from the ground to the branches it measures 13½ feet. The tree is more than 4½ feet in diameter, and has been a good bearer—from twenty-five to thirty-five bushels of apples being picked from it each year. But the frost and rain have made a seam in the branches, and recently one of them was broken, but the other four are green and bring forth their fruit in due season. The other tree is forty-eight years younger and a sprout of the old tree. It stands thirty-two feet from the old tree and bears the same kind of apples, is three feet in diameter and perfect in every way. This tree was decided to be the grandfather of Coburn Ireland in 1760, has passed from father to son until 1875, and then passed into the hands of Daniel H. Gould, the present owner.

THE BUSINESS MEN.

The Business Men of Cleveland Sign a Call for a Republican Meeting.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 24.—Nearly every business man and firm in Cleveland, including millions of dollars of interest in the Lake Superior and other iron mines and a vast extent of rich coal territory, have signed the following call for a rousing Republican demonstration, which will take place next Monday evening in a large business block set apart for the purpose: "The undersigned, representing the business interests of Cleveland and Cuyahoga county, believing that the present unexampled prosperity of the country is chiefly due to the existing tariff and financial policy of the government, hereby request the business men of our city and county to assemble for the purpose of giving public expression to their support. We believe that this prosperity is not seriously menaced and imperiled. Current events demonstrate that this is the vital issue of the pending election contest. We invoke the earnest efforts of every man in behalf of the present tariff and financial policy, upon which the continuance of our prosperity depends, and will assemble at 10 o'clock, etc."

PROSPERITY.

The Estimated Reduction of the Public Debt During September.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—At the Treasury Department it is estimated that the reduction of the debt this month will be at least $12,000,000. The revenues continue very large, and so far from there being signs of their abatement, a steady increase is noted. The accounts of the department for the fiscal year ending June 30 have been closed, and show a revenue of $333,256,111, or more than $1,000,000 for every working day of the year. The previous fiscal year, the aggregate was $273,827,183, showing an increase of revenue of $60,000,000, and that, too, in the face of the fact of a reduction of the tobacco tax. The revenue of the government, on account of the general prosperity of the country, is getting up to figures which prevailed during the war, under a very high rate of taxation. But for the arrears of pension act, which took $27,000,000 from the Treasury in addition to the regular pension payments, the revenue would have exceeded the expenses the last fiscal year nearly $100,000,000.

MILWAUKEE.

The Republicans Harmonious and Confident of Electing Their Ticket.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 24.—The Hon. John R. Eldred to-night announced his withdrawal from the county ticket as a candidate for Sheriff, and John Rugee, one of the strongest Republican business men in the city, was substituted for him. The change was made necessary by the fact that Rugee was the real choice of the Convention and of the party generally. He had given a letter to one of the delegates to be read in case there was a quarrel in the Convention, declining to be a candidate. The delegate imagined because a number of Eldred's friends gave him a complimentary informal vote that there would be a fight, and he read Rugee's letter before a formal ballot had been reached. A happy adjustment has now been made, and the utmost good feeling and confidence prevail.

Sanger's chances for election to Congress brighten every day, and the prediction is universal that he will leave Deuster, the Democratic nominee, about 2,000 votes behind.

PROBABLY MURDERED.

LA CROSSE, Sept. 24.—This afternoon a few miles above this city, in Minnesota, an unknown man was found dead in a ditch. He was evidently a German, and had nothing on his person to identify him. The supposition is that he was murdered and placed in this out-of-the-way place to conceal the crime.

A SICKENING TRAGEDY.

A Sickening Tragedy in River Falls. Murder of a Seventeen-Year Old Girl.

RIVER FALLS, Sept. 24.—A sickening tragedy came to light in this village this afternoon. About 2 o'clock Mrs. Walton, living in the outskirts of the village, rushed into the house of a neighbor, announcing that her children were murdered and lying dead in the house. In a few moments a crowd had gathered at the scene. Passing through the first room, a terrible odor of putrefaction assailed the senses. In the kitchen, back of this, were the victims. The corpse of Mary Walton, a girl of 17, lay upon the floor covered by a quilt, and surrounded by pools of blood. Upon a table settee, or lounge, was the form of her sister, Emma, a child of 12. Her head, terribly bruised and blackened, rested on the bloody pillow, and, at the first glance she, too, seemed to be dead, as her mother had supposed, but, when raised up, recognized those present, rose from the lounge and walked across the room. The father, Luke Walton, who had for some time been the only occupant of the house besides the two girls, was nowhere to be found. The girl's head was literally pounded to a jelly. A soldier once across the bridge, and the skull had been crushed by repeated blows from some blunt instrument. A trail of blood led to the outside floor, and for some distance from the house. A search was made, and a heavy club of iron-wood, about 30 inches in length, by 2½ inches in thickness, was found, freshly trimmed, and with hair adhering to one end. Soon after an old ax-helve, stained with blood, was discovered. These were doubtless the instruments of murder. Around the girl's head were scattered a number of freshly ironed clothes, several ribbons, and a blood-stained ironing board, testifying to the girl's occupation at the time of the murder. Another trail of blood led from where the body was lying to a closet under the stairway. The surviving sister is in a very dangerous condition. All she has said so far has been the remark, "I saw my mother that 'Some bad men hurt Mary' and in answer to a question she said that two young men of the village, upon whom no suspicion rests, had been in the house. As this dispatch is being written the jury is in session, but will probably reach a verdict tonight. Public sentiment is generally disposed to regard the missing father as the author of the crime, and officers have been dispatched after him in several directions. He is a man between 50 and 60 years, and was formerly a miller at El Paso, Pierce county. It is stated that some years since he attempted suicide, and his family relations have been unpleasant for a long time.

THE VAN KIRK TRIAL.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 24.—The Van Kirk murder trial terminated this afternoon, and the jury retired to form their verdict. At a late hour this evening it is reported they will not come to an agreement, six being in favor of conviction and six in favor of acquittal. The arguments of District Attorney McKenney, for the State, and that of W. H. Ebbets, for the defense, are among the most powerful and brilliant legal efforts ever heard in Wisconsin. The main points made by the prosecution are that Mrs. Leach and Patrick came to their death by poisoning, and that Mrs. Van Kirk, who cooked for them and served them medicine, was the only person who could be reasonably held accountable. They have failed to show that she ever brought poison. The defense claim that the arsenic was administered by some one else, either through mistake or malice, others having access to the sick persons. The trial has not cleared up strange mystery, and the public will never be fully satisfied on the question, no matter what is done with Mrs. Van Kirk.

PRICE OF MAUD S.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—The 'Times' says: After Maud S. had trotted with St. Julien and the two tied on their famous time, she is said to be salable at $500,000. So was her companion, several offers at that figure were made for the horse, when her owner trotted a mile alone in 2:11½. Now that the mare has made a mile in 2:09½, it is said that divers turfmen are willing to give $100,000 for her, considering that her making the fastest trotting time on record is fully worth an advance of 100 per cent.

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

Congressman Williams to Address the People of Janesville Next Saturday Evening.

Arrangements have been made for a Republican rally at Lappin's hall, next Saturday evening, at which time and place Hon. Charles G. Williams will address the people on the political issues of the day. Good music will be provided and a good time for all. Every voter should be there to hear a fair honest statement of the record and claims of the Republican party, and the name and fame of the speaker should cause the hall to be packed with eager listeners. Let the rally next Saturday night be an enthusiastic one.

CHICKLETS.

—Burglars are here.

—Fill up the pews to-morrow.

—Myers' new block is showing up nicely.

MRS. MACK'S TRIAL.

Yesterday's doings at the trial of Mrs. Mack, at Jefferson, were little beyond a repetition of evidence produced on the trial here. Watsie was sworn as to the wound on Mack's head. Miss Ethel, the daughter of Mrs. Mack, testified as to the bearing of her father and mother toward each other. Mr. Gould, who was at Jo Head's house the night of the murder, testified as to Snell being there with a horse and buggy, and then driving off towards Mack's. Mrs. Mack, herself, was then put on the stand to tell her story.

This forenoon the direct examination of Mrs. Mack ended, and the cross-examination commenced. Owing to the illness of one of the jurors, adjournment was taken until Monday, which allowed attorneys and witnesses a chance to return home for over Sunday, a privilege which several availed themselves of, returning this afternoon.

A Suggestion to Summer Tourists.

A change of climate is at all times more or less dangerous. There are elements in a new atmosphere which are injurious, especially when the system is exhausted by care and overwork, and which should be guarded against. After careful observation we have come to the conclusion that Wm. A. S. Kidney and are the best preventative for atmospheric evils; and that it will restore health and vigor sooner than any remedy which has been discovered.

GRAND ENTREE.

Burglars Visit the Grand Hotel, and Secure Considerable Plunder.

Last night burglars gained an entrance to the Grand hotel, by turning with pickers the key to the door on the High street side of the house, and proceeded to go through the rooms upstairs. Room No. 26 was occupied by a Chicago traveling man named M. G. O'Brien. They successfully gained an entrance to this room by climbing through the transom over the door, and secured his gold watch and chain, worth probably $125, an emerald stud which he wore in his necktie, and valued at $25, and about $23 in money. Yesterday he had in his possession some $500 or more, which he had collected from customers, but fortunately he had remitted this to his house.

Room 23 was entered in a like manner. It was occupied by a New York traveling man named A. Lasker, and from him they took about $50 in cash. Neither of the occupants of these rooms were awakened, nor was the loss discovered until this morning. There was one man sleeping in the office through which the burglars must have passed, if the theory of their manner of entrance be true. The key to the door on High street was submitted to a jeweler for inspection under the glass this morning, and showed marks supposed to have been made by pickers. Thus far there is no clue pointing toward the guilty parties.

Henry Clement, Almonte, writes: "For a long time I was troubled with chronic Rheumatism, at times wholly disabled; I tried anything and everything recommended, but failed to get any benefit until a gentleman who was cured of Rheumatism by Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil told me about it. I began using it both internally and externally, and before two bottles were used I was radically cured. We find it a household medicine, and for Croup, Burns, Cuts, and Bruises, it has no equal."

YOUNG AMERICA FAIR.

Yesterday was the second and closing day of the Young America fair, held at Seth Fisher's in the town of Center. This was the fifth annual fair held by this society of young folk, and it was even better than any of its predecessors. The show of stock, horses, cattle, sheep, and hogs, was most excellent. The display of fruits was also unusually fine, as was also array of canned and preserved delicacies of all sorts. One exhibitor, Amabel Fisher, a twelve-year-old daughter of Seth Fisher, exhibited twenty-eight different varieties of jellies. Even this single instance may be judged something of the enterprise shown in all departments.

Yesterday afternoon there were about 1,700 people on the grounds from all parts of the county, and including a goodly representation from our own city. Hundreds of teams were hitched along the outskirts of the grounds, and the whole presented a very lively scene. Hon. H. A. Patterson, on his arrival was met by the band, and the officers of the society, who escorted him to the speaker's stand, where he was introduced by Marshal C. Panely, the President of the Society, and the oldest of the officers, although he is not yet eighteen. Mr. Patterson gave a very pleasing address, in which was some most excellent advice to the young folk. He was listened to very attentively, and all pronounced his address one worthy of the many words of praise which were heard on all sides.

The Society, composed as it is of young folk, has certainly worked wonders, and their fair puts to the blush some of the attempts of those older and more experienced. They certainly have won success, and deservedly so.

Jabesh Snow, Gunning Cove, N. S., writes: "I was completely prostrated with the Asthma, but hearing of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, I procured a bottle, and it did me so much good that I got another, and before it was used I was well. My son was cured of a bad cold by the use of half a bottle. It goes like wildfire, and makes cures wherever it is used."

SPRAGUE'S MINSTRELS.

Last evening Sprague's Georgia Minstrels appeared at the Opera house, and were greeted by a fair sized audience. The show was not a first class one, nor was it a very poor one, but a sort of mediocre one, which had some good points, but few remarkable ones. The audience seemed pleased, and the first part of the programme was so good as to call out some enthusiasm, but the latter part of the evening was not so entertaining. Minstrelsy seems a favorite form of entertainment in Janesville; but the demand for something novel and uncommonly funny is on the steady grow, and no ordinary sort of a minstrel show creates any great enthusiasm here.

PECK TO THE GUARDS.

George W. Peck having noticed in the Gazette that the Janesville Guards were trying to raise funds to enable them to go to Atlanta, gets enthusiastic over the project, and talks through his pocket book as follows:

September 24, 1880.

Capt. H. A. Smith:

DEAR SIR: As an honorary member of the gallant Janesville Guard, you have got to permit me to contribute a little towards sending our boys to Atlanta. Enclosed find five dollars. Now, the citizens of your beautiful city cannot afford to fail to send the Guards to Atlanta, and they must not. The visit will be worth thousands of dollars to Janesville, and I hope that I shall not hear that you have been compelled to give up the trip. Go, and may you have a glorious time, and win new laurels for the town that is proud of you.

Yours truly,

GEO. W. PECK.
